HITLER ADMITS WAR IS LOST, REPORTS STATE

Fuehrer Says He Was 'Victim Of Biggest Treason In History'

DESTRUCTION IS ORDERED

Nazi Chief Says Casualties Total 12,500,000 Dead Wounded, Missing

STOCKHOLM, March 8—Unconfirmed German underground reports claimed that Adolf Hitler confessed to high Nazi officials that Germany had lost the war. The admission was said to have been made February 24 at a meeting of 30 responsible Nazi leaders, mostly gauleiters and reichleiters. Hitler told them, the reports said, that he lost the war because he "fell victim to the biggest treason in history" and as a result proclaimed a wanton destruction of Germany.

The Fuehrer's statement to the group, it was added, put all the blame for losing the war on "reactionaries" and treacherous Allies, including Japan which he said had pledged to attack Russia simultaneously with Germany. According to the reports, Hitler disclosed that German war casualties amounted to 12,500,000 dead, wounded and missing.

Because of the hopeless situation, the underground sources said Hitler appointed Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler "special commissioner of destruction" with orders to devastate all German cities and industries even with the aid of the Luftwaffe if necessary. The plans were reported to include the killing of all political prisoners and hostages, although it was said Hitler was "still deliberating" ways and means of dealing with war prisoners.

The reports asserted that Hitler, in commenting on the Yalta meeting, described the Big Three as "three world pirates" who "thought they could share the bear's skin." "But when they march through Germany," Hitler was quoted as saying, "they will not find the bear's skin but ruins, stone heaps, rats, epidemics, hunger and death. It is our holy duty to leave no other inheritance for the Bolsheviks, Jews and plutocrats and thereby... western civilization shall decline."

WRIGHT FIELD CRASH KILLS EIGHT

AIR TECHNICAL SERVICE COMMAND officials counted eight Army Air Force men dead and 13 other airmen and two civilians injured in the crash of a C-60 twin-engine Army cargo plane at Wright field, which is described as the worst disaster in the field's history. The plane plunged into the large hangar, above, and exploded, sending flames 300 feet into the air. Damage was placed unofficially at $3,000,000, with eight planes in the hangar destroyed. ## Marines Drive Toward Northern Tip of Iwo; Yanks Gain On Luzon

By United Press
U. S. Marines fought to within a hundred yards of Iwo's north shore today, while American troops neared the southwestern tip of Luzon and Indian tank patrols advanced to the northern outskirts of Mandalay.

The Marine offensive on Iwo carried past the northern edge of the central plateau toward the northern beaches, where the Japanese admitted their position had become "most critical."

A breakthrough at that point to the north coast would split the last few thousand Japanese holding out in the heavily-defended north.

The battle for Iwo continued fiercely with the Marine gains measured in feet and yards. The Japanese claimed the Marines suffered 580 casualties Monday.

American troops virtually cleared Batangas peninsula in southwestern Luzon and reached within four miles of the southern tip, directly across Verde passage from Mindoro.

Big fleets of heavy bombers and dive bombers joined with artillery in heavy assault of the main Japanese island. (Continued on Page Two)

FLYNN'S WIFE TO ASK DIVORCE FROM FILM STAR

HOLLYWOOD, March 8—Errol Flynn, romantic film actor who has been in court almost as much as he's been before the cameras in recent years, soon will be sued for divorce by his latest wife, Nora Eddington, it was reported today.

Sources close to Movieland said that Flynn would be charged with mental cruelty and incompatibility and would be asked to contribute to the support of a daughter born to Miss Eddington in Mexico City last January. Neither Flynn nor Miss Eddington was here to confirm or deny the report. Flynn was believed to be in New York city, his young wife in Mexico City.

Mrs. Jack Eddington, Nora's mother, said that her daughter planned to fly from Mexico City to Hollywood "sometime this month," but she knew nothing of the divorce plans.

"All we know is that Nora and Mr. Flynn were married last year," she said. "Just where, we're not sure." Some friends said that Flynn and Miss Eddington, cigarette girl at the court house where the actor was tried on two charges in January, 1943, were married in Mexico. Others said the wedding was on a yacht in Mexican waters.

BIG 3 POLICY WILL BE TESTED

Political Developments In Romania Being Watched By United Nations

WASHINGTON, March 8—(UP)—Political developments in Soviet-occupied Romania may bring a sharp test of the Big Three machinery for unraveled problems of liberated Europe, diplomatic observers believed today.

American authorities, seeking to analyze the Romanian situation, admittedly were hampered by the censorship which has shrouded conditions in the former Axis country. A Romanian broadcast reported, however, that a new cabinet with pro-Soviet leanings has taken over under Petra Gorza. (Continued on Page Two)

UAW WILL ASK CIO TO LEAVE WLB POSITIONS

NEW YORK, March 8—The United Automobile Workers will ask the CIO to withdraw its representation from the War Labor Board, it was revealed today.

The international executive board of the UAW, in session here, passed a resolution yesterday advocating the withdrawal.

The resolution will be presented to the CIO executive board this week-end. It charged that the WLB has lost the respect of labor and has become ineffectual because of its lack of authority to deal with basic issues.

It asked President Roosevelt to replace the agency "with a new tripartite agency, representing labor, management and government, which shall have full authority to grant labor equity and whose decisions shall not be subject to the veto of any other government agency."

Ohio River Flood Goes Downstream

SCIOTO RECEDES AFTER REACHING 21 1/2-FOOT CREST

Two Families Evacuated From Their Homes By Sheriff's Auxiliary Members

The Scioto river was falling at Circleville Thursday after reaching a crest of 21.54 feet at 9 p. m. Wednesday. Highest point reached by the river was 2 1/2 feet below the crest of 24 feet predicted.

The stream had dropped to 20.17 feet at 7 a. m. Thursday and was receding slowly.

Although the water did not reach high marks of 1937, considerable damage was done to property. Some livestock was lost and many residents of the lowlands along the river were forced to flee their homes.

The Sheriff's Auxiliary was alerted Tuesday night and members have maintained headquarters at the sheriff's office to make arrangements for refugees and carry out local flood relief. Two families have been moved by the auxiliary.

Eccards Evacuated
The first evacuation, carried out by the sheriff's auxiliary Wednesday afternoon, rescued the four members of the John Eccard family. The water had reached the first floor of their Island road residence.

Two women in the family were brought to the home of Emmett Eccard in Circleville and the two men are staying at the home of a neighbor so they can look after the livestock.

The furniture in the Eccard home was moved up to the second floor. Sheep on the farm were moved into the haymow and other livestock put in the corn crib.

John and William Davis were also evacuated from their home to the home of Cliff Miller, Route 2, Circleville. Auxiliary deputies, John Downs and Clarence Maxson performed the rescue, after rowing through a mile of water.

The two men, one blind and the other sick, were unable to leave their home before the water flooded the neighborhood.

The Red Cross disaster corps received the first group of evacuated refugees from flood ravaged Portsmouth early Thursday morning.

The group of 150 victims of the Ohio river flood came by train to Circleville and were immediately taken to the Trinity Lutheran parish house where they were fed a warm breakfast and were registered by the Sheriff's Auxiliary.

The refugees are to be divided into two groups of about 75 members each. They will then be housed in St. Joseph's recreation center and the Methodist church. Beds and bedding have been sent in from the Army, in Columbus, to supplement the supplies the Red (Continued on Page Two)

BATTLE IS WON AT PORTSMOUTH

Keller, Confident Workers Will Keep River From Flooding City

PORTSMOUTH, O., March 8—This steel and shoe manufacturing city today saw victory ahead in its valiant battle to keep the swirling waters of the Ohio out of its main business and residential districts.

Maj. D. M. Keller, of the Ohio river division of the U. S. army engineers, said he was "very confident" his volunteers and state guardsmen could keep the river out of the city barring unforeseen circumstances.

The river stood at 64 feet this morning—two feet above the city's 62-foot floodwall—and still was rising at the rate of one-tenth of a foot an hour. But Keller felt a new crest moving downstream from Marietta would flatten out before it reached Portsmouth.

Keller had slugged it out with the river every inch of its swollen rise, erecting temporary sandbag barricades between the city's old 62-foot floodwall and its still incomplete 77-foot levee. Even (Continued on Page Two)

German People's Morale Shattered By Bombings, Cologne Resident Says

COLOGNE, March 6—(Delayed)—The heavy Allied air attacks on Germany caused as great damage to the morale of the German people as to war plants and communications.

Panic and hysteria swept through the bombed German cities when the Allies first sent their 1,000-plane fleets over Hitler's "impregnable" Reich.

The people were openly cynical of their own official reports. Casualty figures never were announced, although the list of dead published after a big attack on Cologne in June, 1943, contained more than 2,000 names.

While widespread disorders attended the initial raids, the people gradually became more calm and determined even though the attacks increased in severity and the damage became heavier.

These are not words from an Allied source. They are facts from a German civilian, an employee at the great Cologne cathedral, who lived through all those raids. He is an elderly man who wants to remain anonymous because close relatives are still liable to Nazi reprisals on the other side of the Rhine.

He revealed these facts while his mild clerical eyes gazed through the gaping holes in the roof of Cologne's world-famed cathedral. Overhead cub spotter planes were circling lazily where often he had seen white-starred heavy bombers or spot-lighted night raiders.

The holes in the cathedral were but part of the damage to the building. The cathedral suffered no direct hits, but the damage from nearby exploding bombs was heavy and will take many years to repair.

The fundamental part of the cathedral, generally considered the most beautiful gothic structure on the continent, was not hurt and the building will be repaired rather than rebuilt.

Most of the roof is gone, not a single window is intact, the masonry is scarred from flying fragments and the floor is piled high with debris.

DANGER PASSES AT CINCINNATI, OTHER CITIES

Thousands Flee As Waters Race Toward Indiana And Kentucky

MEMPHIS, TENN., March 8—Army engineers today rescued all of an undetermined number of soldiers pitched into the swollen waters of the flooded White river when an assault boat capsized, Col. G. W. Miller, district engineer, reported.

By United Press
Rain-swollen tributaries poured into the twisting Ohio river today, threatening to engulf downriver communities and forcing an ever-increasing torrent of refugees to flee their homes.

The swirling, debris-laden waters rose rapidly below Cincinnati and as far west as Cairo, Ill., with the crest expected in southern Indiana and Kentucky during the week-end. A 47-foot level—18 feet above flood stage—already was registered at Louisville.

Farther up the river, however, the level appeared to have reached its peak. The rains had ceased and there was no appreciable rise after midnight.

In all, more than 30,000 families were at the mercy of the sullen Ohio river, on its worst rampage in eight years.

The death toll had climbed to at least nine in six states, and war production was halted in many mines, mills and factories throughout the devastated area.

From the air, the flooded valley presented a grotesque picture of life at a standstill. Entire communities were under water. Hundreds of freight cars stood idle. Cemeteries were watery wastes with a few gravestones sticking up here and there.

All but one railroad had ceased passenger service to Louisville, where merchants moved their stocks upstairs to escape the water spilling into the city's lower business district. Some 1,800 families were evacuated from the area and others prepared to flee momentarily. A 47.5 crest was predicted by noon today.

Highest levels were predicted throughout lower Indiana and Illinois, but were not expected to equal the record heights of the 1937 disaster.

Backwaters settled in Cincinnati's industrial section, but the sprawling Wright engine plant at nearby Lockland and war industries in the Millcreek valley areas resumed production after a temporary tie-up yesterday.

Property damage in Cincinnati alone was more than $1,000,000 and losses from halted mine operations, war production and general (Continued on Page Two)

LEWIS REQUESTS PRIVILEGES FOR SOLDIER - MINERS

WASHINGTON, March 8—Contract discussions between John L. Lewis and soft coal operators centered today on re-employment rights of war veterans returning to mine jobs.

The United Mine Workers president has demanded an "agreement to aid returning war veterans in obtaining employment as provided by law, protecting their seniority rights and dealing with problems relating to re-employment."

UMW spokesman said the union wants the re-employment and seniority provisions of the selective service act incorporated in the new contract to replace the agreement expiring March 31. Several hundred honorably discharged veterans have returned to their mine jobs but the UMW claims that there have been cases where the full provisions of the law were not observed.

NURSE DRAFT IS ASKED BY HOUSE

Senate Military Affairs Committee To Study Bill Next Week

WASHINGTON, March 8—Unmarried nurses who want to beat the draft may have only a week to latch on to husbands and retain their civilian status.

The deadline is not definite because the senate of the United States has not spoken.

Under the nurse-draft bill passed by the house yesterday, virtually every graduate woman nurse, aged 20 through 44 and single as of March 15, 1945, could be conscripted for service with the armed forces.

The senate military affairs committee will begin consideration of the measure next Tuesday. Chairman Elbert D. Thomas, D., Utah said the committee will hold a series of hearings before it makes any recommendations to the senate.

It seemed likely that senators on the military affairs committee would demand "proof" that a nurse draft is necessary. The senate has demonstrated its reluctance to pass a manpower (Continued on Page Two)

YANKEE SOLDIER IS HANGED FOR LONDON MURDER

PENTONVILLE PRISON, London, March 8—Pvt. Karl Gustav Hulten, 23, a Boston, Mass., paratrooper, was hanged today for the $30 murder of a taxicab driver.

He was the first American to die on a British gallows, home of records showed.

Only a scant dozen prison officials witnessed the hanging in a small, enclosed courtyard of ancient Pentonville prison. Notice of the execution was posted on the prison gates at 9:09 a. m. as the prison flag dipped to half-staff.

A crowd of 250 men and women milled about the gates despite repeated shooting by police. Mrs. Violet Vandereist, crusader against capital punishment, was arrested when she attempted to enter the prison gates in a truck shortly after 9 a. m.

"He came here to be a paratrooper, not to hang," she shouted as police hustled her and the truck driver away through the sympathetic crowd.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, the 18-year-old strip tease dancer who was condemned to death with Hulten for the murder of George Heath, "the man with the cleft chin," was beginning a life sentence at Aylesbury prison.

She was reprieved by Home Secretary Herbert Morrison less than 48 hours before she, too, was scheduled to hang. Morrison refused clemency for Hulten despite an appeal for clemency from Boston, Mass., presumably from his wife or mother.

NURSE DRAFT IS ASKED BY HOUSE

The American Third Army, standing on the Rhine above Coblenz, joined with the American to the north today in a squeeze against thousands of Germans stranded in the Rhine-Mosel triangle.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's forces held a long corridor to the Rhine north of the Mosel after a spectacular 60-mile break-through. The First Army was coming down from the area of Bonn, where the Germans still held a bridge crossing. A security blackout covered the movements of both armies, but between them large bodies of Germans faced the problem of getting across the river before the trap closed.

On the eastern front, the Germans reported that Russian troops have driven two wedges into the stronghold of Kuestrin, 33 miles east of Berlin. Nazi broadcasts said the Red Army had opened a full offensive on a 40-mile stretch of the Oder from Frankfurt to the elbow of the river 29 miles northeast of the capital. The Russians were attacking strongly on both sides of Frankfurt as well as at Kuestrin, Berlin said.

Patton Scores
The drive against Germany from the west was highlighted by Patton's breakthrough to the Rhine, reminiscent of his sweep through Normandy last summer. It established flank coverage north of the Mosel for four armies lined up along the Rhine from there to Holland for the big push into the Reich.

More than 8,500 prisoners were taken along the entire front yesterday, the largest one-day haul of the offensive. Patton's army accounted for 2,000 of them.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army north of Patton's cleared the Rhine bank on both sides of captured Cologne as far as the Ninth Army flank at Neuss and southward to the edge of Bonn.

Thousands of Germans were fleeing through the Bonn gateway and the narrowing escape gap south of it. Barges and ferries supplemented the few bridge crossings.

Ninth Closes In
The Ninth Army was massing along the Rhine on a 30-mile stretch before the Ruhr cities of Dusseldorf and Duisburg. Its northern wing was closing in against the enemy's Wesel bridgehead in support of the Canadian (Continued on Page Two) businesses soared into untold millions.

Cincinnati weather officials said the river hovered slightly below the 60-foot mark and was falling at the rate of .3 feet an hour.

At Pittsburgh, the Coast Guard reported the river had fallen more than three feet below the 33.3 crest of yesterday.

The renewed threat to the lower river towns was blamed partially on two crests moving down from Wheeling, W. Va., and the "elbow" of the Ohio around Portsmouth, O.

Portsmouth, an industrial city of 40,000 appeared to have passed the crisis. The downtown area was evacuated and state guardsmen kept a constant patrol around the 62-foot wall, which was sand-bagged to hold back the water.

Fire swept the Lawrenceburg, Ind., register plant for a loss of $25,000 when the flood prevented firemen from nearby Aurora from reaching the blaze.

The picture state-by-state:

Indiana—Three thousand families fled their homes in the path of overflows from the Ohio and Wabash rivers. Lawrenceburg and Tipton were completely isolated.

Aurora was three-fourths underwater. Flood levels at Jeffersonville and Evansville reached 46 feet.

Ohio—Water stood in the streets of a dozen waterfront towns. At least 14,000 persons had been evacuated. Low sections of the Cincinnati waterfront and industrial district were covered.

Portsmouth residents held back the water with sandbags after it topped the city's 62-foot floodwall. Marietta was almost completely inundated.

Kentucky—Rail service almost suspended to Louisville where 1,800 families moved to higher ground. A 47.5-foot level was predicted today. Some 3,000 families were expected to be evacuated as the crest moved down-river. War plants forced to shut down included B. F. Goodrich synthetic rubber plant, National Carbide Corp., Curtiss-Wright assembly plant and others at Louisville.

West Virginia—Approximately 5,000 war workers kept from their jobs. Point Pleasant, Parkersburg, and New Martinsville partially under water. Highway traffic stopped south and west of Wheeling. Evacuation underway at Greenbrier.

Pennsylvania—Some 25,000 mine, mill and shipyard workers idled. Flood apparently reached its height. Waters at Pittsburgh stood eight feet above flood stage.

Illinois—A 53-foot crest predicted at Cairo, at the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. The city was considered safe, however, behind its new 60-foot flood wall.

Mississippi—Tallahatchie, Coldwater and Yazoo rivers receding.

Arkansas—White river still threatening in the north, and Arkansas and Ouachita rivers subsiding.

EARLY APPROVAL OF AGREEMENTS IS NOT EXPECTED

WASHINGTON, March 8—Administration hopes faded today for approval of the Bretton Woods agreements before the world security conference opens at San Francisco April 25.

As Assistant Secretary of State Dean Acheson went before the house banking committee for the second day of hearings on the agreements, Committee Chairman Brent Spence, D., Ky., said he would like to see ratification before April 25 but doubted it was possible.

Other administration supporters on the committee expressed the same belief. One of them, Rep. George E. Outland, D., Calif., said, however, he believed an attempt should be made and that the committee should work overtime if necessary.

The question of pre-conference approval was injected into yesterday's hearing when Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., said in response to a question that it would be "desirable."

The joint council of the Tariton and Stoutsville Lutheran congregations met in regular session in the Lutheran church of Stoutsville Monday evening with Rev. H. B. Drum in charge.

The bill passed by the house provides that:

Unmarried graduate women nurses, 20 through 44, could be drafted for service with the armed forces.

They would be offered commissions as Army second lieutenants or Navy ensigns.

An otherwise qualified nurse would be exempt if she had been married before March 15, or had dependent children under 18.

There would be no discrimination because of race, color or creed.

Selective service boards would decide which nurses should be drafted for military duty. First The War Manpower Commission would certify their eligibility.

PATTON SWIMS GERMAN RIVER TO SHOW TROOPS

BALTIMORE, March 8—A daring new exploit was reported today in the colorful career of Lt. Gen. George S. (Blood and Guts) Patton, Jr.—that of twice swimming the icy, 150-foot Sure river in Germany, despite heavy enemy fire, to show his men it could be done.

One of the men who followed him across, S/Sgt. Thomas J. Defibaugh of Cumberland, Md., reported the story while on a tour of war plants here.

Defibaugh, member of the fourth infantry division, said the incident took place in January when elements of Patton's Third Army reached the banks of the Sure opposite Bettendorf. They were told to lose no time in taking the town. But the Germans opened up with murderous artillery and machinegun fire.

"Just before dawn we started going across in three-man boats," the sergeant said. "After a while, though, General Patton decided the men were 'sitting pigeons' for the Germans. He called the boats back and ordered the men to swim across with rifles, bazookas and everything they could carry."

"To show us it could be done and to inspire the troops, General Patton jumped into the water and swam to the opposite bank. Then he swam back."

"Thousands of troops followed him and fought like madmen for Bettendorf."

BIG 3 POLICY WILL BE TESTED

Goza was deputy premier under the deposed Nicholas Radescu. Officials made no secret of their anxiety over the lack of a clear picture of the implications of the shakeup. Reliable sources said this government was attempting energetically to allay suspicions that (1) the new Romanian government is not representative of the Romanian people and (2) the Goza regime is a direct result of Moscow influence.

They confirmed that the American ambassador to Moscow, W. Averell Harriman, had been directed to sound Russian officials on the situation. Harriman, it was added, also had been commissioned to attempt to cut through the rigid censorship which has thrown a haze around political activities in Romania since Russian troops occupied the country.

Romania is administered by a British-American-Russian control commission which, by agreement among the Allies, is dominated by Russians. In the same manner Anglo-American authorities dominate the allied control commission for Italy.

The state department was said to be proceeding with caution in an effort to determine whether the principles—if not the machinery—of the Big Three declaration on liberated Europe should be invoked in the case of Romania. The agreement provided that the United States, Britain and Russia would act together to make certain that provisional governments were representative of all democratic elements among the people.

American authorities, it was added, desire a fuller picture of the overall situation before jumping to the conclusion that Romania's political shakeup is a violation of the Yalta agreement.

Romania is regarded in some quarters as ripe for an application of the Yalta principles. That would require a Big Three commission separate and distinct from the allied control commission, whose job is based purely on the terms of Romania's armistice with the Allies.

The Chinese were 33 miles from Hsipaw on the last Japanese escape route from Mandalay.

Tokyo reported that four American superfortresses raided Wake Island for the first time yesterday. Tokyo also said that five other B-29's made single flights over the main Japanese home island of Honshu today without dropping bombs.

A new outbreak occurred in Rome last night but dispatches said Premier Ivanoe Bonomi's coalition government appeared to be weathering the political crisis. The cabinet decided yesterday on more stringent measures against suspected war criminals.

Details of the reported Russian drive on Berlin was still confined to Nazi broadcasts. Moscow remained silent on the subject, although the Soviet command customarily delays announcements of offensives until they have concrete results.

Otherwise, Moscow disclosed that the First and Second White Russian armies had cleared a wide stretch of the east coast of Stettin Bay, had driven to within 12 miles of Stettin itself and to within 24 miles of the port of Danzig in advances along a 165-mile Baltic front.

Ernst Von Hammer, Nazi radio commentator who usually reflects the view of the high command, said the Russians were storming Kuestrin from the north, south and east.

Whether Zhukov's vanguard was across the Oder anywhere still was uncertain. The enemy report of fighting on both sides of Frankfurt suggested the Russians were across the river there, where they forced a crossing a month ago.

The Nazis reported last night that the Soviets were trying to storm across the Oder near Kuestrin, but gave no later clarification.

DIVORCE GRANTED

BATTLE IS WON AT PORTSMOUTH

women and children were pressed into the battle.

The fight amazed veteran rivermen who looked on doubtfully when Keller announced he believed he could hold the river up to 65 feet.

He almost lost yesterday. The current breached a section of the barricade. But weary river workers—some of whom have been on the job 40 hours—reconstructed the levee and threw back the river.

Keller's workers believed they won their crucial battle last night when their 30-foot wide sandbag levee on the west side of the city held out the backed up waters of the Scioto river which poured its flood tide into the Ohio at Portsmouth.

Portsmouth's worst enemy today was weariness rather than the river. Tired workers who had been heaving sandbags for hours dropped in their tracks, too tired to move. Keller appealed for 200 men to help in the final hours of the battle.

The river was creeping up in suburban New Boston which is outside the floodwall. But in Portsmouth itself the only water getting in was floodwall seepage which was nominal.

SWISS AGREE TO CUT SHIPMENTS TO THE REICH

BERN, Switzerland, March 8—A major loophole in the Allied blockade of Germany appeared to have been plugged today with the conclusion of an Anglo-American-Swiss economic agreement limiting the flow of goods through Switzerland to the Reich.

Details of the pact were not disclosed immediately, but a joint statement issued by the Allied and Swiss negotiators indicated Britain and the United States had won sweeping concessions from Switzerland.

The far-reaching nature of the agreement was evidenced by the Allies' formal assurance that Switzerland would be granted a "share" in the Allied victory and would participate in the expected post-war expansion of world trade.

Among the subjects on which full agreement was reached were limitation of Swiss exports to Germany, restrictions on the use of Swiss transit facilities by the Nazis and the sale of electric power to Germany.

In addition, the Swiss agreed to prevent the Nazis from concealing looted property and assets in Switzerland and accepted other unannounced demands aimed at tightening the blockade on Germany.

Cross obtained from the Mount of Praise.

Another group of 200 from Portsmouth is expected to arrive Thursday, but local authorities have not received any definite information as to when they will be dispatched.

Additional facilities are ready to receive more refugees. The Presbyterian church, St. Philip's Episcopal church and Memorial Hall have been made ready to house disaster victims.

Circleville Health Commissioner Thurman I. Miller has ordered a quarantine on all buildings inhabited by refugees. No refugee may leave the quarters assigned to them unless authorized to do so.

TIRE-SLASHING VANDALS SOUGHT BY CITY POLICE

Circleville police Thursday were hunting vandals who slashed six automobile tires on cars that were parked on South Court street. The tires were cut Tuesday night, police reported.

Two tires on a car belonging to George Crites were ruined. Cars owned by Funk grocery and J. B. Franklin each had one tire cut, police said. Two tires on a car bearing Ohio license D D-4 were cut.

ARTHUR ENSMINGER DIES

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gilliland, of 145 Pinckney street, were called to Saginaw, Mich., Thursday by the death of her brother, Arthur Ensminger, 55. Mr. Ensminger, a merchant of that city, died unexpectedly Wednesday night of a heart ailment. Mr. and Mrs. Ensminger were known in Circleville through visits in the Gilliland home.

live stock have been rescued by the police and sheriff's departments as well as by neighbors who were not affected by the flooding waters.

Roy Hawkes, Circleville weather observer, recorded a high temperature of 38 degrees Wednesday. The low temperature Thursday at 7 a. m. was 29. There was only a slight trace of precipitation Wednesday.

Jackson township pupils were sent home at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday because of the flood threat but the school was operating as usual Thursday. All other schools also were in operation.

Route 23 north of Circleville was clear of flood water but traffic to Chillicothe was being detoured. The Scioto blocked the highway at Chillicothe.

JAPS EXPECT AN INVASION OF HOMELAND SOON

LONDON, March 8—The Tokyo radio today quoted the newspaper Asahi as saying that "there can be no doubt of the American aim at an invasion of the Japanese homeland."

"Before embarking on the venture they will establish air bases along the Bonin-Iwo-Ryukyu-Formosa line," the newspaper was quoted. "Presumably an invasion of the Japanese islands will be undertaken in a not far future."

BAND CONCERT TO BE GIVEN THURSDAY NIGHT

Public Invited To Hear Benefit Program At High School

Program for the Red Cross benefit band concert to be presented Thursday at 8:30 p. m. was announced by Director C. F. Zaenglein.

The concert will be presented by the Circleville high school band as part of the program being staged by city schools to raise money in the Red Cross War Fund drive.

The program includes: March, "Blaze Away", Holzman; national aviation song, "Sky Anchors", Waring; selection, "The Lost Chord", Sullivan, Dale Delong, trombone soloist; march, "Uncle Sammy", Holzman; overture, "Princess of India", King; patriotic march, "Over There", Cohan; selection, "Festal", Hazel; "Beer Barrel Polka", Brown; popular selection, "Goodbye Broadway, Hello France", Davis; march, "Army Air Corps", Crawford.

The public is invited to attend the program for which the Circleville high school band has been practicing for several weeks.

CITY FAILED TO BACK SOLDIERS, 'FLASHES' SAYS

Circleville women are not supporting the production program and residents of the community are not backing the blood bank, according to this week's issue of "Rotary Flashes", edited by R. L. Brehmer.

This week's bulletin states: "Gwen O'Neal (Red Cross representative who spoke at last week's meeting) told us that the women of Circleville are not supporting the production program at Red Cross headquarters. It is much worse than that: Circleville proper failed to support their fighting men on the recent visit of the Red Cross Blood bank. Folks outside of Circleville saved the day.

"Ashville particularly is to be commended. The proportion of blood donors from the Ashville community and the Walnut township area have been outstanding and indicate a splendid patriotic and community spirit. Circleville furnished the volunteer workers to conduct the blood bank and employees of several industrial plants did themselves proud but generally the people of Circleville stayed away. Looks like what we need is for the fighting men to give us a transfusion of some kind."

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Troop 2
At a meeting held at the Girl Scout headquarters, Troop 2 was under the supervision of Miss Betty Newton, the Ohio Fuel Gas company's food demonstrator. For a period of six weeks, Miss Newton will have charge of the meetings. During this time, she will present a food program which will introduce the scouts to this field through lectures and practical application.

At the conclusion of this six-week period, the scouts will complete all the necessary requirements for the foods and cook badges.

Miss Newton told the scouts at the regular meeting the fundamentals to observe in selecting fruits and meats from the markets. The scouts will next prepare a breakfast showing a balanced diet.

Troop 3
Due to illness in the troop, not many girls attended this meeting. The activities were limited to the completion of a project in International Friendship and plans were discussed for another home-making activity.

The troop's part in the birthday party and housewarming was discussed, with work toward it being done outside of meetings. Partial collection was made toward the Juliette Low Memorial fund.

Four new girls are candidates and help was given them in preparing for Tenderfoot Rank.

Games were enjoyed before the close of the session.

Brownie Troop 5
Brownie Troop 5 met at headquarters with 15 Brownies present.

Work was done on the international project, a Dutch scene. Each month the girls plan to study a different country in which there are scouts.

They will make also a scene for that country. Songs were sung and the meeting was closed with the Goodnight Brownie ceremony.

Brownie Troop 7
The most of the meeting of Brownie Troop 7 was passed in working on the poster for the Juliette Low Fund—"Our Pennies Take a Trip," showing where the pennies go.

Troop members sang a George Washington song that was learned the week before.

Troop 8
Girl Scout Troop 8 opened its meeting with roll call and minutes of the last meeting. The Girl Scout promise and salute were repeated together.

Mrs. Walter Heine gave an interesting talk about Juliette Low founder of Girl Scouts.

The troop received its letter from National Headquarters about corresponding with sister scouts abroad. It was decided to leave this until the next meeting when all the members were present. The troop decided to have a pot-luck supper at the next meeting so that members could work on the project for Girl Scout Day, March 12. At the close of the meeting, the scouts sang America.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Definition of a Great Man

At Bill Webster's the other evening, we were kidding Bill about his children always saying that their pop's "a great man."

"Well, the kids are right," chuckles BILL. "Everybody in America's a great man. You just can't be part of greatness and not share in it."

In America (argues BILL) things that used to belong only to the great are common property; a share in government through the right to vote; individual liberties guaranteed by constitution; freedom to speak one's mind; to work at what one pleases; to choose what one likes to eat or drink... whether beer or buttermilk.

But from where I sit, there's one important point to add... to make BILL's definition ring true. We must be worthy of this greatness. We must have the humility to appreciate these blessings... never abuse them with intolerance, intemperance, or indifference.

Joe Marsh

SENATE TRYING TO AGREE ON MANPOWER BILL

Solons Buckle Down In An Effort To Pass Measure By Nightfall

WASHINGTON, March 8—Urged time and again to quit "messing around" with manpower legislation, the senate buckled down today in an effort to reach a decision by nightfall.

Senators differed in predictions as to the type of bill that will be passed. But virtually none expected it to be the tough work-or-else bill approved by the house more than a month ago.

Instead, test votes in the senate yesterday indicated that if any manpower bill is approved it will be the substitute measure written in the senate military affairs committee.

The substitute would eliminate completely the house-approved labor draft for men from 18 to 45. It emphasizes the elimination of labor hoarding and puts legal force behind War Manpower Commission regulations for employment ceilings and hiring controls.

The only penalty provision was aimed at employers who violate such employment ceilings. They would not be allowed to figure the wages of excess employees in war contracts or in computing operating expenses for income tax purposes.

Two more attempts to put other penalty provisions in the bill were in prospect, however.

Sen. Joseph H. Ball, R., Minn., wanted to put in a $5,000 fine and one year in jail for any employer who violates employment ceilings fixed by the War Manpower Commission.

Sen. Josiah H. Bailey, D., N. C., wanted to insert the house-approved feature that any man from 18 to 45 would be subject to $10,000 fine and five years imprisonment for refusal to take an essential war job. A similar Bailey amendment was rejected yesterday by a smashing vote of 60 to 23.

The senate subsequently rejected, 54 to 27, a so-called anti-loafing provision which would have assessed those penalties on men 18 to 45 for failure to take any job, regardless of its essentiality to the war effort.

Sen. Albert B. Chandler, D., Ky., interpreted the two votes as indicative that the senate might refuse to pass any manpower bill at all. But the opposite view was taken by senate Democratic leader Alben W. Barkley, who still wanted the house-approved measure, and supporters of the committee substitute. It was Barkley who urged the senate to stop "messing around" and pass a bill.

Barkley told reporters he was positive the senate would approve a manpower bill in some form—possibly before nightfall. Committee Chairman Elbert D. Thomas, D., Utah, predicted that senators who voted against labor compulsion would vote overwhelmingly for the committee bill.

MOB VIOLENCE HEIGHTENED IN ITALIAN REVOLT

ROME, March 8—A mob attack on Regina Coeli prison, two more bombings and other scattered violence heightened the political crisis threatening to overthrow the Bonomi government today.

The executive committee of the Communist party issued a formal warning that all Communist ministers and undersecretaries will resign unless Premier Ivanhoe Bonomi immediately effects wide-sweeping changes in Italy's internal policies.

Bonomi presided at an extraordinary cabinet meeting starting at 8 a. m. The meeting was called to discuss the crisis, which was touched off by the escape of Gen. Mario Roatta, one of Italy's principle war criminals, from a military hospital Sunday night.

Crowds of tattered, hungry-looking men and women stormed the thieves' quarters of the Regina Coeli prison from the outside during the night in an attempt to free non-political prisoners and at the same time reach political inmates in another section.

Police inside the prison fired their rifles over the heads of the crowd. Hastily-summoned firemen directed water hoses against demonstrators who had broken out of their cells and were assaulting the exits.

WALNUT JUNIORS TO GIVE PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

The junior class of Walnut township high school will present its class play, "The Whole Town's Talking" Friday at the school auditorium. The play, which has been a popular stage production for many years, is a three-act comedy written by John Emerson and Anita Loos.

The story centers around the efforts of Henry Simmons to marry his daughter to his business partner, Chester Binney. Mrs. Simmons strenuously opposes her husband's wishes, because Binney is not the handsome, chivalrous type of man she would choose for her daughter. The daughter insists on marrying a man who has had lots of love affairs. So Simmons and Binney plot a make-believe love affair with a famous movie actress, Letty Lythe. Everyone begins talking about Binney's past love affair when the local theatre announces the personal appearance of Miss Lythe. Matters become quite complicated, but finally Miss Lythe uses Binney to calm her jealous manager. How Binney finally wins provides much of the comedy of the play.

Pat LaRue plays the part of Binney; Richard Koch, the part of Simmons; Rose Mary Barr, the part of Mrs. Simmons; Mona Belle Glick, Letty Lythe, and Martha Lee Heffner, Ethel Simmons. Others in the cast are Maxine Elack, Norma Jean Davidson, Vivian Martin, Marjorie Muncie, Charlene Wilson, Dorwin Hay, Charles Hines and Archer Stewart.

Chairmen of staff committees are Charlene Wilson, Alice Kocher, Virginia Monroe, Jane McRoberts, Wayne Jones, Richard Fisher, and Bob Smith. The play is being directed by Miss Nellie Oesterle.

Music will be furnished by members of the junior class and the school orchestra under the direction of Miss Dana Mary Poling.

Short Short Story

HE WAS WORKING on aircraft engines at Iba Air Field, Luzon, when the Japs blew that base to bits. He survived the "March of Death" and spent two years in a Nip prison camp before the Yanks came back. And here you see Sgt. Chester Konka working out a 90-day furlough at a Detroit war plant and doing just what he was doing when the Japs struck—turning out powerful aircraft engines. (International)

WILLIAM DAVIS SELECTED TO SUCCEED VINSON

WASHINGTON, March 8—Chairman William H. Davis of the war labor board was appointed to be economic stabilization director. The move apparently will make smoother sailing for limited wage increases permitted by the labor board.

The White House announced that Davis will succeed Fred M. Vinson, who was confirmed by the senate yesterday to be Federal Loan Administrator. Vinson will move into his new position tomorrow.

The realignment of the administration's stabilization team appeared to give Davis a victory in his months-old feud with Vinson over Vinson's order restricting so-called "fringe" wage increases.

Vinson ruled that there could be no so-called fringe increases if they necessitated any price increase. The WLB, particularly Davis, contended that it could issue directives for fringe increases and that Vinson then could approve them even if price increases were necessary.

The White House said the WLB chairmanship will go to George W. Taylor, University of Pennsylvania professor who now is vice-chairman of the board. There was speculation that the vacancy on the board created by Davis' pro-

NEW WAY TO TRAVEL

CAN escalators running on the level solve the traffic problems? This is to be considered by Detroit, which proposes to spend $24,000,000 to remedy traffic conditions. The idea is borrowed from the conveyor belt in factories. There would be a series of belts, the outer one running very slowly, the inner ones picking up speed and the middle one capable of 30 miles an hour. There might be seats, or the passengers might have to stand. That would be nothing new.

Making turns might give trouble, unless passengers were put in wheelless cars and shot around corners as in a roller-coaster.

This project, discussed by Akron, O., papers and worked on by the rubber plants there, sounds like the newest thing out. It was forecast, however, as were loud speakers and other devices, by the English novelist and prophet, H. G. Wells, as far back as 1899. In a novel, "When the Sleeper Wakes," depicting life in A. D. 2,000 the main London streets are moving roadways, and railroads have been superseded by these traveling belts.

John W. Love, industrial commentator, suggests that a good name for this new and fancy mode of travel would be "The Belt Line."

HELPING THE HOME TOWN

LOYAL to the home town has inspired a manufacturing plant in a Great Lakes village, Vermilion, Ohio. The owners, a family of brothers, are commemorating their father, F. W. Wakefield, founder of the plant and a noted yachtman, by endowing a special nautical collection of books. Volumes of sailing, yachting and the history of lake shipping will be bought, and subscriptions entered for appropriate magazines. In those the residents will be able to get needed information on the fishing, sailing and water recreation which today constitutes Vermilion's chief activity, and in so doing will remember both founder and givers.

Citizens of other towns who would like to commemorate some relative or to do something for their communities might bear in mind this idea. Many communities have some distinctive interest which could thus be served.

The worst fate that President Roosevelt's bitterest enemies could wish him is that at these Big Three Conferences he should have to smoke European cigars.

It's a lot easier to give blood at home than to shed it on the battle field.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up and soon away by wagon, but at the city's edge did slow down when the motor offered walls of protest and steam rose in a cloud. After going through all that real Winter weather and requiring nothing more than a new battery, a motor tune-up and a few odds and ends that power house suddenly contracted Spring fever and declared it quits. The motor four years old and the original anti-freeze in the radiator and what the could I expect anyway, according to the garageman. So, did tell him to give it the full treatment for I have no intention of going back to boots and saddle and I live too far out to walk. And it is indicated that the time is far, far away when I can get another car.

There goes Turney Weldon who is making a really great fight for recovery from illness. Turney's happy laugh was known and recognized through the county for many years. And that reminds me I have not seen Frank Lynch for too long a time and must call on him at his home.

Came a letter from Joe Gilt, who is out with the fleet Joe urges that the home folk provide more entertainment for the boys home on leave and sounds praise of the Roll and Bowl and the Youth Canteen. Also he suggests that church and civic organizations write regular letters to members in service, every home front member writing at least a paragraph and the joint letter mimeographed for mailing.

Joe also suggests a four page paper made up entirely of local and county news, but is in doubt as to how it could be financed. Joe, like most others, is unaware that we publish a six page weekly paper, made up entirely of city and county happenings and meeting in every respect the paper he suggests for the soldiers. Some soldiers take it, but most of them prefer the daily, which also contains state, national and world news.

Plans for the financing of Memorial Lake are progressing slowly but surely. One local organization is said to be ready to contribute $10,000 to the undertaking. That's a lot of money, but a lot of money will be needed—some $50,000. The lake project would provide a great playground for the people of the county and, according to state conservation officials, would be

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 8—What the crafty John Lewis is up to is plainly discernible from the inside.

He has a bad situation on his hands in a sick industry. Any miner who is enough of a mechanic to change a spare tire has been able to go into the shipyards and earn more money than at the very hard task of mining coal.

Miners, in my opinion, deserve higher wages. But as I say the industry is economically anemic, and the government cannot do anything about the general wage level anyway because of the Little Steel formula.

So, with the industry practically shoved to the sidelines, Mr. Lewis has begun a new rapier match with his onetime political playmate, now personal enemy, Mr. Roosevelt, who will tell the War Labor Board what to do.

Incidentally I understand the government is already fully prepared to take over the mines April 1 after the threatened strike goes on no more than 24 hours. Having done this once before the operation will be routine with no interference in coal supply and probably no change in conditions or wages of labor. A 30 day supply for industry is probably available if any hitch develops in this performance.

At any rate in the face of this economic predicament, Lewis has come forward with a series of subterfuges and circumlocutions to justify his job of always getting the miners a little more each year or so.

He proposes to get his wage increases by doubling vacation allowances up to as high as $100, premium allowances, full portal-to-portal pay and some other similar non-wage extractions.

But his biggest trick is his plan to make the American people—mostly the poor who use coal and cannot get it under special rate contracts as railroads and industries do—pay his union 10 cents a ton tribute. This idea, he stole from Petrillo, the musical-union czar.

But Petrillo is not the inventor. He is now exacting about two cents on every phonograph record purchased by the public, and thus was the first union leader to collect private excise taxes on a national scale, but the scheme of collecting such tribute for no services whatsoever, originated in some small union contracts years ago.

Lewis, of course, did not invent the sit-down strike either, but he imported it from France and perfected its use in this country, as a sabotaging means of extracting contracts from employers. If he and Petrillo get away with this collection of tribute, it will, in my opinion, bring an early doom to existing labor leadership.

There is no basis in common public justice for a union collecting tribute from the people for any purpose. Formerly labor always based its plea for wage increases on an appeal against injustice.

Now Petrillo is collecting his two cents per record, not to lift the worker's wage, but to furnish free musical concerts (he says).

The mine workers would not get a wage increase from the Lewis tribute as he intends, he says, to use the fund for their

DIET AND HEALTH

Chronic Dyspepsia

YESTERDAY we discussed the acute and chronic forms of indigestion caused by actual organic disease inside the abdomen, such as appendicitis typifying an acute form and ulcer of the stomach typifying a chronic condition.

But we all know that there are dyspepsias who do not fall into these categories. In fact the very word, dyspeptic, suggests something entirely different.

Always Complaining
It suggests a crabby old guy who is always complaining about his inner machinery and yet keeps going for years and years and never gets any worse or really looks very sick except when he puts on one of those very pathetic expressions as he tells you about his stomach turning over and over.

Every once in a while this fellow—or girl, because it is more likely to be a she than a he—turns up with something real. But in general the long course of the trouble, the lack of evidence of bad health, indicates that the fundamental nature is functional and that means due either to the emotions or to reflex disturbance.

Some Emotional Causes
By emotional causes of digestive disturbances, we include a good deal more than what the average man would call nervousness, and what the physician would call neurosis. They include also early training, for instance. Many a dyspeptic mother or father has implanted the idea of the vast importance of the digestive functions on one or two children. Many a catholic taker has fixed for life in a child the idea of the enormous harmfulness of constipation.

In the field of reflex causes of dyspepsia two spots in the digestive tract stand out as trigger points from which reflexes along the entire system are fired off, the gallbladder and the rectum. Haemorrhoids, or piles, or fissures in the anal-rectal region may cause little or no local disturbance yet be responsible for severe and long continued functional derangements as high up as the stomach. This is on account of the extensive concentration of sympathetic nervous fibers in that region.

It has been found on the X-ray that the insertion of an enema tip will stop the normal regular rhythmic contractions of the stomach and upper intestines.

A well known doctor writes: "It is often taught that in many cases haemorrhoids develop as a result of constipation, and it is a well known fact that constipation is commonly associated with them. Our results would suggest that, after the haemorrhoids are formed the constant irritation due to them may establish a vicious circle."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A teacher—Permit me to call your attention to a very conspicuous grammatical error in one of your recent columns. You said—"Apples, lemons, oranges and grapes are among the most healthy foods." The word should be healthful, not healthy.

Answer: Webster defines healthy as—"conducive to health; wholesome." You didn't get far enough in school.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

An advisory Pickaway County Conservation committee was named to work with the State Conservation and Natural Resources commission with T. E. Wilson as chairman; Ray Rader, vice chairman, and Harry Bartholomew, secretary.

The Scioto river, booming over the old Route 22 stretch, West of Circleville, when it passed the 18-foot stage, was back in bank with the reading at 11.55 feet. The high water gave the new highway its first trial, water pouring through the spill ways for the first time.

John W. Frazier, 22, a former Walnut township school pupil, was killed when he was crushed under his automobile which fell when a jack slipped.

10 YEARS AGO

Col. J. B. Woods, who had spent six months in Florida with the Polk Canning Co., returned to Circleville for a short stay at home before going to Noblesville, Ind., where he was to work for the same company until the following November.

Miss Louise Kerns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Kerns, of Kingston, and Jacob Gilt, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gilt, of East Franklin street, were married March 6 in the parsonage of the U. B. charge, East Franklin street, with the Rev. Surgeon Metzler officiating.

Workmen digging for construction of a sanitary sewer on East Ohio street found the remains of a corduroy road which traversed a swamp in that section of the city years ago.

25 YEARS AGO

Burglars entered Friedman's store, West Main street, and stole six georgette blouses out of a show case.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Salter purchased the O. H. Spenser home on North Pickaway street and were to take possession August 1.

Nellie Noble, of Clarksburg, was to represent the school of that village in the Scioto Valley Oratorical contest, March 19, at Waverly.

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, March 8

THE lunar transits for this day are most auspicious and encouraging for all sorts of domestic, social, artistic and affectional matters, and favor as well those business operations concerning the advancement and enhancement of these. Nevertheless, there are signs of stubborn obstacles, opposition from elders, employers or superiors, together with intrigue, craft, subtlety and duplicity to be carefully disposed of before real happiness and accomplishment may climax such benign prospects. Think deeply, move cautiously, with consideration, finesse and amiability, for much gratification is in sight. Those whose birthday it is are promised a year of celebrations, social functions, domestic and cultural activity, with happy fulfillments in romance or affectional relations. But elders or employers may attempt to block this felicity, and these must be placated or mollified, by finesse, compromise, tact or diplomacy. As well, there is a menace of deep-seated attack behind the scenes, where betrayal, intrigue and illicit maneuvers must be uncovered and decisively vanquished. Such might best be accomplished by a kindred program of well-thought out strategies or careful intrigues or shrewdness, but do not be snared by appearances. A child born on this day will have many social and cultural graces, and should be popular, affectionate and well intentioned. But difficulties and subtle dangers may prove "the fly in the ointment" of such felicity.

HELEN COMES HOME

by Watkins E. Wright

SYNOPSIS
HELEN MILLER is an attractive young woman of 26, who has been jilted by a playboy, PAUL WENTWORTH, a southern plantation owner, who married ZOE NORRIS. Helen lives in an apartment with war plant trainees AGGIE JONES, a pleasant, 30-year-old self-cooked "old maid," who urges Helen to try to mend her broken heart by dating PHILIP BROWNELL, foreman and manager of the war plant owned and operated by Helen's AUNT MINERVA, a shrewd business woman who drives a hard bargain and hopes to match Brownell and her niece during Philip's stay in New York on vacation.

CHAPTER FIVE
GLIDING smoothly over the dance floor with Philip, her thoughts centered upon the past—when she was in the arms of Paul—Helen was startled to hear Philip's voice close to her ear.

"I could offer you the usual price for your thoughts," he said. "It would do you no good," said Helen, trying to speak lightly. "They're not for sale."

Silence and then: "You worked as your aunt's secretary, didn't you," said Philip, "when you lived in Lakeville?"

"Yes," Helen replied. "It's the only job I ever had until I came up here."

"Do you like it—in New York?" "Oh, yes!" Helen said—and suddenly wondered if she did. "It's exciting working in a big Fifth Avenue store. I'm secretary to one of the buyers, and he often asks my opinion about styles and colors."

"Don't you ever feel an urge to go back home?" "Occasionally!" Helen said. Then, as the music came to an end, she said: "Let's go outside and have a look at the city wrapped in darkness."

"They went through a full-length window and out upon the terrace. They stood in the shadow of a parapet and looked below, above, and out into space. It was almost like looking upon a world forever dead, Helen thought—upon a world forever lost in gloom. Neither spoke for some moments. The cacophony of street noises came faintly to their ears, and presently a long finger of light, reaching out from the Jersey shore, caught and held for a brief second a plane that soared high among the stars."

"One would think we'd gone back to the dark ages," Helen said, when the darkness was there again. "And after boasting about having reached the very pinnacle of civilization."

"Yes," said Philip. "Looking out over the city as it is now gives you a sort of fantastic feeling. It's like an illustration from one of those weird scientific stories—stories telling of the world of the future."

"And what a dreadful place such a city would be," said Helen. "The very thought of it makes me feel hollow way down inside, and a little afraid."

Philip moved closer to her. "It is upsetting," he said. "The way things are now—civilians living in air raid shelters, like animals in caves—and soldiers hiding in fox-holes." He forced a smile. "The next thing we know, men will be fighting each other with clubs, a la the Stone Age, and running off with the women they want, after banging them over the heads."

"Not a very cheerful prospect," Helen thought for a moment. "Better make it around 11," she said. "I'm usually busy with dictation before then."

Philip still held her hand. "Remember that picture I was telling you about—the one on your aunt's desk?"

"Yes."

"I fell in love with it—over a year ago." And before Helen could speak—or while she was trying to speak—Philip said: "And one day when Miss Minerva walked in and saw me holding the picture, she wanted to know why in heaven's name I didn't stop mooning over a photograph, and go moon over the original." He smiled, and there was a slight huskiness in his voice when he said: "And so here I am."

"You mean you came over to New York—just to moon?" said Helen, finding words at last, and trying to sound amused.

"I like mooning," Philip said. "Good night—Helen."

She stepped back a little, looked up into his face.

"Good night—Philip," she said.

It was one minute after 11 the next morning when the telephone bell rang.

"Come about lunch?" Philip said. "Fine!" Helen replied. "Only we have to make it here in the store. I haven't much time."

"Okay! Twelve? One?" "Twelve-thirty," said Helen. "I'll meet you on the mezzanine. There's a public lounge there."

"I'll be there—on the dot!" Philip said.

And he was. But even so, Helen was there first.

"The restaurant's this way," she directed. "I hope you don't object to a lot of women shoppers. It's pretty distracting at times—with all of them trying to talk at once."

"What do you mean 'trying'?" Philip laughed. "They do. But I won't hear them. I'll be too busy listening to you." Then, when a waitress had seated them and taken their order, he went on: "I want to ask your advice about something."

"What picture?" "The one on your aunt's desk. I see it every time I go in to have a conference with her. Do you know what I always think when I see it?"

"I haven't the slightest idea."

"I always think how nice it would be if the original were there instead."

"Sitting on the desk?" Helen laughed.

"No, sitting AT a desk," Philip said.

"I'm glad you feel that way about it," Helen said. "But I've got a desk to sit at in the apartment. That is, if I'm to get caught up on work."

Philip said: "I hate to have the evening end. I feel wide awake—good for at least two hours more of gadding. But I don't want to tire you out."

"Of course you don't!" Helen replied. "That would be retarding the war effort."

They went out to the elevator. They got in and were dropped 65 stories to the street level. The doorman signaled for a taxi. They were oddly silent as they were driven uptown.

When they were standing in the hall of the remodeled brownstone house in which Helen and Aggie had their apartment, Helen said: "It's been fun getting back into the swing of things. Thanks a lot."

"Thank you," said Philip, taking her outstretched hand. "May I telephone you in the morning?"

Helen thought for a moment. "Better make it around 11," she said. "I'm usually busy with dictation before then."

Disastrous 1913 Flood Recalled As Scioto River Floods Again

NORTH END OF CITY FLOODED BY BACK WATER

Pickaway County Bridge Loss Totaled More Than $200,000

Forecasters that the Scioto river would almost reach the stage that flooded its valley in 1913 recalled to older residents of Circleville memories of that tragic March when the most disastrous flood in the valley history raged.

Thousands were made homeless, millions of dollars in property damage was reported, hundreds were killed when the Scioto went on a rampage.

Circleville was not as hard hit as other communities but some residents suffered greatly. The Scioto hit a crest of 24 feet 2 inches at Circleville and backed up Hargus creek until it flooded homes in the north end of the community.

'Flood Gates Open'

A story of the flood covering the whole front page of the Union-Herald on March 27, 1913 stated: "The flood gates of heaven opened and sent the greatest flood through this valley Tuesday night, March 25, that has ever been known in local history. Six inches of water fell in the last 72 hours."

"The small creeks, runs and rivers, overflowed their banks Monday, and to this sheet of water the rains of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday night and up until 5 o'clock Wednesday morning were added."

"So great is the flood of water that it has put out of commission The Circleville Light and Power Company, the Colonial Carriage factory, the Scioto Valley Traction line both north and south of the city, the Pennsylvania division, east and west of the city and the Norfolk and Western north of the city."

Tracks Washed Out

In this the greatest flood in the history of Circleville the railroad tracks out at the strawboard factory, now the Container Corporation company, were washed out up to the doors of the engine house. The N & W tracks were washed out for a distance of 1000 feet from the freight house. The Mackey Ford bridge, which entered in to the recent flood account, was also affected in the flood 32 years ago.

In the city itself, which today is not even affected by all the rising water around it, the Union-Herald had this to say: "Hargus creek not to be outdone by its big sister, the Scioto, showed itself. The little creek backed up by the culvert under the canal flooded the entire creek valley, and so quickly did the waters rise that in thirty-five minutes residents on North Court, Pleasant and a part of Pickaway streets, were marooned in their homes. Torrents of water came madly into homes and at 11 o'clock urgent calls for assistance were made and the fire department responded with both auto engine and hook and ladder truck. The auto engine furnished light for the rescuers and the fire ladders, Chief J. M. Baer, John Baer, Ed Strawser, and Philip Berry assisted in the work. Many were taken from their homes in boats, among them being several who were ill."

Taken From Barn

John D. Newton had to be rescued by chopping a hole through the roof of his barn where he was trapped. Fires that were extinguished by high water caused the water pumping station to shut down. A cave in on Pleasant street

The county surveyor Howard Sweetman estimated the damage to bridges at $200,000. The Red River bridge was washed out Wednesday. It had been built in 1868 at a cost of $35,000. The Bloomfield bridge had been carried away and also a bridge at Mud Run on the Columbus pike. "The aqueduct," reads the Union-Herald of that day, "itself stands like the rock of Gibraltar with wreckage, logs, roofs of sheds, houses and trunks of trees piled against it."

Bodies Float Down Stream Showing the extent of disaster in 1913, the April 3 edition carried this story: "All through the night a silent procession of the dead from Columbus and other cities up the river were borne down on the bosom of the turbulent stream. About six o'clock while Martin Delong was standing on the river bridge he spied the body of a little girl about ten or twelve years of age coming down the river. He jumped over the railing of the bridge, swung in under and hanging by one hand tried to reach the child, but the swift current carried the corpse beyond his reach. The child had brown hair."

"Shortly afterwards the body of a full grown man nearly naked was discovered floating on the east side of the river between the bridge and the aqueduct. Parties tried to reach the corpse but before they could launch a boat the body was carried down the river."

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

(Continued from Page Six) medical assistance and insurance. Actually Lewis, if not Pettillo, has in the past used such union money to buy elections (his half million dollar advance to Roosevelt in 1936) and he will again.

Their funds are secretly manipulated by them beyond the power of public or worker inspection, although they have no money except that which is paid by the public in prices because the employers (who must file public balance sheets and pay income taxes) have no money except that which the public pays for products.

These men are becoming Little Caesars exacting tribute from the people, including the poor who are great consumers of coal, if not phonograph records. They are growing out of their bounds of union leadership and are trying to make their organizations super-governments to fleece the people with ever-expanding racketeering methods.

Incidentally, another union Caesar, Sidney Hillman, simultaneously is running into difficulties with similar excesses in his latest venture toward a labor alliance with the Russians.

It develops that his proposed world labor league would leave him and his CIO with fewer votes even than Britain, and the league would be controlled by the 27,000,000 Russian workers (claimed) with the Toledano Communist labor crowd in Mexico (who will vote in the international organization as if he had the 4,000,000 workers claimed although he has actually about one-tenth that much.)

The British are already scared and showing signs of running out on Hillman, with whom they originally cooperated.

The recent Detroit and other strikes exhibit excesses in various lines which would take five columns to tell. Some say here the biggest strikes were solely designed to get the government to take over the plants, although no well-run union wants the government messing into its affairs.

In short, behind all the labor news recently has run the undercurrent of further justification for the prediction that the growth of power of unions is passing its climax and may decline abruptly in the coming years, solely because too few of its leaders knew how to use its great new power wisely and intelligently in the real interest of both the worker and the public.

Family Boasts 13 in Plant LAWRENCE, Kan. (UP)—Mrs. Minnie Beers, 63, probably holds the record for supplying the largest family of war workers to the Sunflower Ordnance Works, rocket powder plant near DeSota, Kan., according to public relations officers. At the present time, besides Mrs. Beers, there are 7 of her sons, 1 daughter, 1 son-in-law, 2 daughters-in-law, and 1 grand-daughter working on the plant production lines.
